

ASCARIASIS (Roundworms)

Roundworms are the most common intestinal parasite of dogs and cats. Pets become infected by swallowing roundworm eggs or larvae found in the contaminated soil or feces or by eating infected rodents, birds and certain insects.

PUBLIC HEALTH SIGNIFICANCE

Human infection with roundworm larvae is possible but does not occur frequently if good hygiene is practiced.